Business: The group's principal activity is organized into two business segments: specialties & intermediates (s&i) and basic chemicals & polymers (bc&p). The s&i segment produces a broad range of products, including specialty polyolefins used in wire and cable insulation and jacketing; surfactants for industrial cleaners; catalysts for the manufacture of polymers, etc. The bc&p segment converts various hydrocarbon feedstocks, principally liquefied petroleum gases and naphtha, into the basic building-block chemicals ethylene and propylene, which are in turn converted to polyethylene, polypropylene and ethylene oxide and ethylene glycol. This segment provides ethylene, propylene, ethylene oxide, ethylene glycol and various other derivatives to the s&i segment. On Feb 6, 2001, the group merged with a subsidiary of the Dow chemical company (Dow). Specialties & intermediates accounted for 68% of 2000 revenues and basic chemicals and polymers, 32%.

Business: The group's principal activity is to distribute polyurethane chemicals, coatings, and spray-on bedliners for trucks. The primary target for the group subsidiary Marald, Inc.'s truck bed liners was the auto dealers market, which dealers sell liners to, as part of the accessory package at the point of sale of the truck, and can be included as part of the financing package. Other targets for the subsidiary included leasing companies that serviced large fleet customers and local accessory installers. The former potential fleet customers of the subsidiary included businesses with delivery services such as soft drink distributors, construction companies, and lawn care services. The group sold 100% of its investment in Marald, Inc. to American International Industries Inc.

Business: The group's principal activity is to provide global customers with solutions for improving their efficiency and productivity. It operates in two segments: automated data systems (ads) and industrial automation systems (ias). The ads segment provides mobile computing solutions for the field worker, automated data collection systems for on-premises and site-based workers, wireless network systems for wireless enablement of an enterprise and barcode label and printing solutions. The ias segment is a leading producer of value-added manufacturing products and services spanning the production cycle from process engineering and design to systems integration including comprehensive life cycle support. Ias serves the global aerospace, automotive, off-road vehicle and diesel engine industries as well as the industrial components, heavy equipment and general job shop markets. In 2003, the group sold substantially all the assets of its lamb body and assembly systems division.

Business: The group's principal activities are to acquire, explore, develop and mine uranium properties. The group uses in situ leach mining process to extract uranium. The leach mining process fortifies groundwater with oxidizing agents is pumped into the ore body causing the uranium contained in the ore to dissolve. The resulting solution is pumped to the surface where it is further processed to a dried form of uranium that is shipped to conversion facilities for sale. The in situ leach technique avoids the movement and milling of significant quantities of rock and ore as well as mill tailing waste associated with more traditional mining methods.

Business: The group's principal activities are to develop, manufacture and market medical devices for the treatment of urological disorders. The group offers non-surgical, catheter-based therapies that use a proprietary cooled microwave technology known as cooled thermotherapy for the treatment of benign prostatic hyperplasia (bph). The cooled thermotherapy can be performed without anesthesia or intravenous sedation and can be performed in a physician's office or an outpatient clinic. The therapy provides a safe and cost-effective solution that is superior to medication without the complications and side effects inherent in surgical procedures. The products of the group are marketed under the names targis (TM) and prostatron (r). The group operates in the United States, Europe and Asia.

Business: The group's principal activity is to design, develop, manufacture, and market medical products for the treatment of urinary incontinence and vesicoureteral reflux. The group's main product is macroplastique(R) implants, an injectable, soft tissue bulking agent used to treat certain types of stress urinary incontinence ("Sui"). Sui refers to the involuntary loss of urine as a result of activities that increase intra-abdominal pressure. Macroplastique is also used to treat vesicoureteral reflux ("Vur"), a condition occurring mostly in children in which urine flows backward from the bladder into the kidney. In addition, the group's implantable bulking material is also sold for reconstructive and cosmetic plastic surgery applications under the trade name bioplastique(tm). The group's international operations are in the Netherlands, the United Kingdom and Canada. The group markets its products only outside the United States, primarily in Europe.

Business: The group's principal activity is to supply low enriched uranium (leu) for commercial nuclear power plants. Leu is a critical component in the production of nuclear fuel for nuclear reactors to produce electricity. The group supplies leu to electric utilities for use in about 160 nuclear reactors. Its customers are domestic and international utilities that operate nuclear power plants. The group has two reportable segments: low enriched uranium and U.S. Government contracts. Low enriched uranium concentrate on sales of the both swu and uranium components of leu and sales of uranium. The government contracts segment represents work performed for doe and doe contractors at the portsmouth and paducah plants. The group is the exclusive executive agent for the U.S. Government to purchase leu derived from highly enriched uranium contained in decommissioned nuclear warheads in Russia.

Business: The group's principal activity is to design, manufacture and market wireline and wireless broadband access and switching equipment. The product lines of the group include mswitch, pas, an-2000 and 3g offerings. Mswitch is a highly scalable, ip-based, multiservice switching architecture that bridges the gap between existing circuit-switched and next-generation packet-switched networks. Personal access services allows service providers to offer premium-quality voice, data, and value-added services over mobile and fixed wireless networks using the specially designed pas handsets. An-2000 provides a broadband-ready access platform. 3g network solution enables the transformation of voice-centric mobile communications to content-rich multimedia services. On 30-Jun-2003 the group acquired rollingstreams systems ltd, on 7-May-2003 assets of xebeo communications, inc and on 23-May-2003 certain assets and liabilities from 3com's commworks division
