Business: The group's principle activities include developing, marketing and selling innovative products to guide and improve the treatment of viral diseases. The company develops a way of directly measuring the impact of genetic mutations on drug resistance and using this information to guide therapy. The company has a proprietary technology called phenosense, for testing drug resistance in viruses that cause serious diseases such as aids, hepatitis b and hepatitis c. It collects phenosense test results and related clinical data in an interactive database that can be made available to physicians for use in therapy guidance. The group operates from United States.
